Collaboration Showcase

EAST Core, local EAST Program students and teachers shared how they have collaborated to bring STEM content to life at the National EAST Conference held in Hot Springs in March, 2014.

EAST Core students are applying the content learned in their classes to assist them in completing several exemplary projects here in Arkansas.

- Star City High School is working on a long range, school-wide, multi-disciplinary project focused on the Cane Creek Watershed.
- Hot Springs High School students are helping the Department of Game and Fish develop more accurate algebraic models of deer population shifts.
- Harrisburg High School students are working with technology resources in their Coordinated Learning Center to measure the acoustical properties of their performance arts auditorium in order to make improvements.
- Monticello High School students are applying the skills from their geometry class to assess and broaden handicap accessibility for their school.

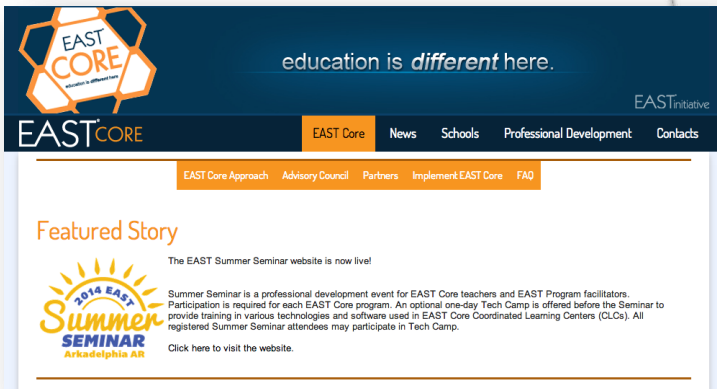

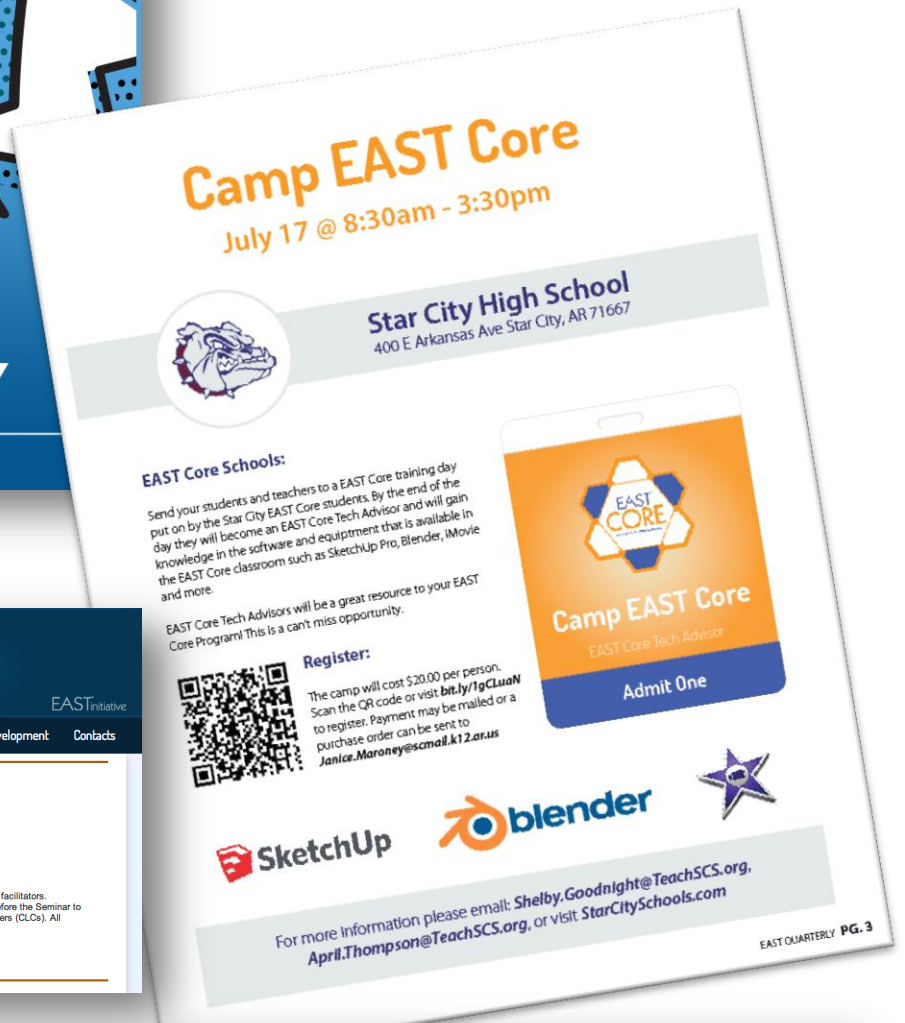

Intensive professional development provided for EAST facilitators and EAST Core teachers, in collaboration with business, industry, and post-secondary partners (various venues), establishes and grows a shared mission for educating students.
