decided by the preponderance of the evidence presented to the sentencing authority during the sentencing phase of a trial. The amount may be decided by agreement between a defendant and the victim represented by the prosecuting attorney.

5 (c) Restitution shall be made immediately, unless prior to the 6 imposition of sentence the court determines that the defendant should be given 7 a specified time to pay or should be allowed to pay in specified installments. 8 In determining the method of payment, the court shall take into account:

9 (1) the financial resources of the defendant and the burden that 10 payment of restitution will impose, with regard to the other obligations of 11 the defendant;

12 (2) the ability of the defendant to pay restitution on an13 installment basis or on other conditions to be fixed by the court;

14 (3) the rehabilitative effect on the defendant of the payment of 15 restitution and the method of payment.

(d) If the defendant is placed on probation or any form of conditional release, any restitution ordered under this section shall be a condition of the suspended imposition of sentence, probation, parole, or transfer. The ocurt may revoke probation and any agency establishing conditions of release may revoke such release if the defendant fails to comply with the order and if the defendant has not made a good faith effort to comply with the order. (e) The court shall enter a judgment against the defendant for the amount determined under subsection (b). The judgment may be enforced by the State or a beneficiary of the judgment in the same manner as a judgment for money in a civil action. A judgment under this section may be discharged by a settlement between the defendant and the beneficiary of the judgment.

32 (f) If more than one defendant is convicted of the crime for which there 33 is a judgment under this section, the defendants are jointly and severally 34 liable for the judgment unless the court determines otherwise.

35 (g) A judgment shall require payment to the Department of Community

Punishment which shall provide for supervision and disbursement of those funds by the department's authorized economic sanction officers. The court shall determine priority among multiple beneficiaries on the basis of the seriousness of the harm each suffered, their other resources, and other equitable factors.

6 (h) A judgment under this section does not bar a remedy available in a 7 civil action under other law. A payment under this section must be credited 8 against a money judgment obtained by the beneficiary of the payment in a civil 9 action. A determination under this section and the fact that payment was or 10 was not ordered or made are not admissible in evidence in a civil action and 11 do not affect the merits of the civil action.

(i) Any restitution type program currently being operated by a
