Update on the Excel Center at Goodwill

Senator English stated that Act 1200 of 2015 allowed for the implementation of an adult charter high school in Arkansas to give adults, who do not have a GED or a high school diploma, the opportunity to earn a full high school diploma. She said the next presenters would give an update on this very successful school.

Presenters:

Mr. Brian Marsh, President and CEO, Goodwill Industries of Arkansas, Inc., was recognized. Mr. Marsh stated the Excel Center has been in operation since October 2017; it operates year-round with eight-week terms. He said students average in age from 19 to the late-50s. He said each student is tested when enrolled; students are coming in with roughly a fifth- to seventh-grade level of education. He said an education plan is developed with each student to encourage progress toward the achievement of a high school diploma. Mr. Marsh said the Excel Center has 98 students in the current session with 14 staff to support those students. He noted every student is assigned a life coach to help with challenges faced daily from going back to school as an adult. He stated the Excel Center is fully funded and operated by Goodwill Arkansas Education Initiatives, the non-profit created by Goodwill Industries of Arkansas.

Ms. Cindy Varner, Vice President of Workforce Development, Goodwill Industries of Arkansas, Inc., was recognized. Ms. Varner called members' attention to Handout 3, and discussed its contents, which included data on school-wide demographics; employment status at enrollment; barriers, including childcare and transportation; public assistance; family life; and history of the Excel Center.

Contributors to the Discussion:

Dr. Charisse Childers, Director, Arkansas Department of Career Education

Mr. Johnny Key, Commissioner, Arkansas Department of Education

Mr. Isaac Linam, Staff Attorney, Bureau of Legislative Research

Issues Included in the Discussion:

- availability of public access to the Internet in career centers at 33 of 44 Goodwill stores across the state,
- functioning of the Excel Center as a licensed public charter school without the use of public school funds,
- life coaches facilitating students through barriers to success,
- qualifications for life coaches,
- using the Excel Center model in junior and senior high schools,
- availability of pre- and post-graduation data to inform the tracking of those who are able to get off public assistance following graduation,
- earning industry-recognized certificates; partnering with colleges for concurrent college credit; building business partnerships,
- requirements for providing funding for education,
- inability to transfer funds provided for a high school student who drops out and attends adult education, and
- increasing funding for adult education.

Discussion of the Arkansas Campaign for Grade-Level Reading (AR-GLR)

Presenter:

Ms. Angela Duran, Campaign Director, Arkansas Campaign for Grade-Level Reading (AR-GLR), was recognized. Ms. Duran stated the AR-GLR is a state-wide coalition, launched in 2011, with partners that include the Arkansas Department of Education (ADE), the Department of Human Services (DHS), teachers, superintendents, early childhood groups, and parents. She said the goal of AR-GLR is to have every child in Arkansas read at grade-level by the end of third grade. Ms. Duran discussed five challenges, and the progress made, in meeting that goal. She commented on: 1) parent and community ties; 2) readiness of kindergarten students when they arrive in the classroom; 3) absenteeism of kindergarten through third graders; 4) grade-level reading of third graders; and 5) access of students to high-quality summer learning programs. Ms. Duran also shared results of a study conducted by the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS), which looked at wages and benefits, education level, professional development needs, and common barriers and supports of the early childhood workforce.

Contributors to the Discussion:

Mr. Johnny Key, Commissioner, Arkansas Department of Education

Ms. Stacy Smith, Assistant Commissioner, Learning Services, Arkansas Department of Education

Issues Included in the Discussion:

- correlation of teacher salaries in childcare and pre-K to grade-level reading,
- importance of transportation and participation in summer programs,
- relevancy of the science of reading to the coalition,
- coalition's position on having a year-round school,
- oversight responsibility for coordinating and aligning all curricula in pre-school programs,
- R.I.S.E. (Reading Initiative for Student Excellence) Arkansas,
- re-engaging coops in grade-level reading,
- engaging parents and institutions, and
- finding solutions that actually make a difference.
