COMMUNITY

Community Providers are often so busy that they're unaware of all the resources available, and many feel isolated in their work.

FAMILY

Families often interact with multiple agencies, but without coordination, services are delivered in silos and out of sequence, limiting their impact.

The Restore Hope Model is For the Community, By the Community.

The Restore Hope Model

Branded as “100 Families Initiative” in Arkansas

The model supports a community-led initiative to help participants move from crisis to stability and onto a career using existing community resources by:

Engaging community partners in an ALLIANCE

Training agencies on a collaborative case management system - HOPEHUB

Training PRIMARY PROVIDERS to respond when a participant is in crisis.

Engage Partners in an Alliance

A local, trusted collaborative organization is chosen to lead the alliance as the backbone organization.

This organization hires a coordinator to engage community partners.

Providers and stakeholders are encouraged to use a common outcome measurement system, HopeHub.

Partners across multiple sectors are encouraged to join the Alliance:
Stakeholders: Influencers, those with lived experience, decision makers
Connection Providers: Across all 13 Areas of Care
Point of Contact Providers (POCP): Those who engage in holistic case management.

Declarations of Participation are signed.

Primary Providers respond when a family is in crisis

Those who enroll participants into the initiative are Primary Providers.

Titles vary and range from “Case Manager” to “Family Advocate”

Can be employed by any partnering organization that wants to provide holistic case management

Responsible for Completing Assessments, Action Plans, and Adding Support Team Members
