Hobbs v. McGehee - APPEAL FILE

Current Court Case Number: CV-14-542 Case Type: CIV - Constitutional Challenge of AR Law
Assigned Attorney: Merritt, Jennifer L
Reason Closed: Final Judgment/Opinion Rendered

File Facts:

Injunctive and declaratory judgment action against the Arkansas Department of Correction and its Director seeking to prohibit execution under lethal injection law. The circuit court entered summary judgment in favor of the prisoners on their separation-of-powers claim and in favor of the State on the prisoners' anti-retroactivity argument. Both parties appealed. Jennifer Merritt orally argued the case on behalf of the state on 2/19/15.

On 3/19/15, the Supreme Court reversed on direct appeal and affirmed on cross-appeal. The court held that Act 139 does not violate the separation-of-powers principle in article 4 of the Arkansas Constitution because the delegation of authority is not unfettered and is bounded by reasonable guidelines from the legislature. In addition, the court held that Act 139 is not a sentencing statute and, because it will be applied only to executions after its enactment, it does not violate rules against the retroactive application of sentencing statutes.

Prisoners filed a petition for rehearing or to dismiss the appeal, which was denied on 4/23/15. The court "noted" the motion and supplemental motion for judicial notice on 4/23/15. The Clerk issued the mandate on 4/23/15, finalizing the appeal.
