In the third quarter of FY2016, the Division of Youth Services (DYS) hosted the second quarterly meeting of Arkansas' historic Youth Justice Reform Board. The Board was established by Act 1010 of the legislature and its membership has been appointed by the governor, bringing together stakeholders from across the state to develop a series of recommendations for youth justice reform in Arkansas by June 30th, 2016. Stakeholder groups represented on the board include juvenile-justice involved families and youth, the Department of Education, the Department of Workforce Services, several partner Divisions within the Department of Human Services, youth services providers, juvenile judges and the Administrative Office of the Courts, prosecuting attorneys and public defenders, youth advocates, and experts in adolescent development.

The Division is working with the System of Care consortium to develop a program with the Division of Behavioral Health and the Division of Children and Family Services to better foster family engagement. DYS continues to partner with the Division of Behavioral Health to implement diversion pilot programs that will link juvenile judges to local treatment options for court-involved youth who have been diagnosed with a disability. Likewise, the Division is partnering with the Annie E. Casey Foundation to continue support for Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI) sites currently in the state.

During the third quarter, the unique public-private partnership between DYS and Shorter College continues providing on-campus college-level instruction to youth in residential care at the Alexander Juvenile Assessment and Treatment Center (AJATC); this program provides college credit to juvenile-justice involved youth as a bridge back to the community and to future success. Thirteen youth have received college credit they will be able to take with them to any state institution of higher learning through the Arkansas Credit Transfer Program. This quarter, fifteen students earned their high school diploma while in DYS custody. Ten students have passed the Arkansas Career readiness Certificate WorkKeys program with either a bronze, silver, or gold certificate.

The State of Arkansas is required by the federal government to have three Targeted Counties addressing Disproportionate Minority Contact (DMC); DYS currently coordinates with four county-level DMC coalitions and the state is in compliance with the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention's (OJJDP) mandate to address DMC.

In the third quarter, DYS and the Arkansas Juvenile Justice Coalition (ACJJ) continue to oversee and support the more-than-thirty programs that receive funding via Title II and Juvenile Accountability Block Grants (JABG) to fund prevention and intervention programming; these encompass mental health services, gender-specific services, deinstitutionalization of status offenders, disproportionate minority contact, juvenile justice system improvement, law enforcement training, graduated sanctions, drug courts, interagency information-sharing, needs and risk assessments, restorative justice, recidivism reduction, and others. The agency aims to partner with stakeholder groups to provide non-profit 101 trainings and technical support for subgrantees.

This quarter 118 youth were committed to DYS and the agency has a total of 767 youth in its care. In the third quarter, twenty incidents of suspected abuse or neglect were referred to the Arkansas State Police. Of the twenty incidents, the Arkansas State Police determined nine merited an investigation. The statuses of all nine investigations remain pending.

DYS Vision

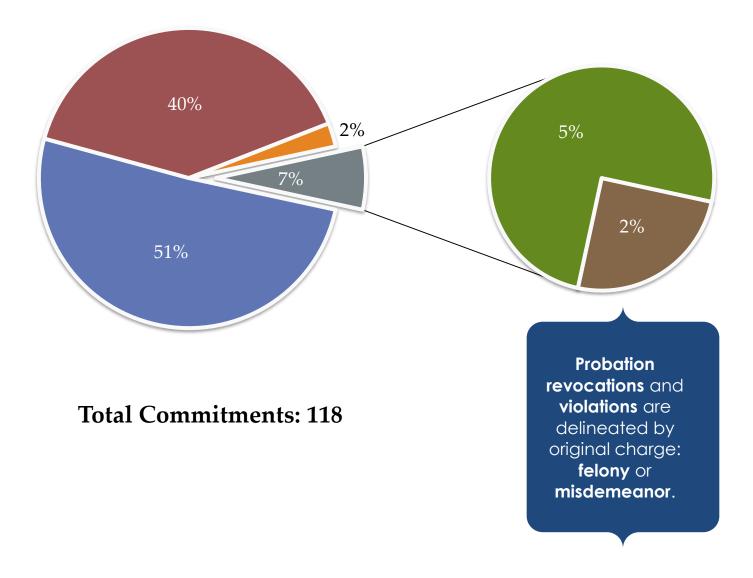

Arkansas' juvenile justice system is a leader in reform and collaboration across the state, working to prevent most youth from ever needing legal intervention and providing those that do with effective rehabilitation and reintegration; youth that become involved with the juvenile justice system are treated, educated, and equipped with the tools they need to find success as productive and responsible members of collective society.

DYS Mission

The Division of Youth Services' mission is to provide effective community-based prevention, diversion, appropriate correction and rehabilitation, improved education and thorough aftercare in order to enhance the comprehensive well-being of the youth of Arkansas involved in the juvenile justice system.
