24 Executive Order 9066, which established military exclusion zones and enabled 25 the federal government to force more than one hundred ten thousand (110,000)

28 centers; and 29

30 WHEREAS, seventy percent (70%) of the people who were forced into 31 assembly centers were American citizens of Japanese descent; and 32

36

1           WHEREAS, most of the WRA centers were in California, Arizona, Idaho,
 2 Utah, and Colorado, but in the summer of 1942, two (2) war relocation centers
 3 emerged from the swamps and forests of southeast Arkansas, Jerome and Rohwer; 4 and

5
 6           WHEREAS, Jerome and Rohwer were selected by the federal government for 7 their geographic isolation and location near railroad tracks in southeast 8 Arkansas; and

9
 10          WHEREAS, Jerome and Rohwer were the only WRA centers east of the Rocky 11 Mountains and the WRA centers that were farthest east; and

12

 17 at its peak population housed eight thousand four hundred ninety-seven 18 (8,497) inmates, and has the distinction of being the last WRA center to open 19 and the first one to close; and

20
 21          WHEREAS, Rohwer opened on September 18, 1942, and closed on November
 22 30, 1945, and inmates assigned to Rohwer came from Hawaii; Los Angeles

 31 and

32
 33          WHEREAS, the evidence of Jerome's existence that remains today and that 34 is visible from U.S. Highway 165 is a smokestack from the hospital complex, 35 two concrete tanks from the wastewater disposal plant, and a former 36 administration building that is visible from U.S. Highway 165; and
